Readings

Proverbs 31:10-31 A hymn to the good wife which appears traditional and yet is radical: praising a woman for her entrepreneurial skills, her generosity and work in many spheres of life. It is easy (and often justifiable) to criticise the Biblical portrayal of women yet we see here a woman who is not judged by her relationship to a man, by her looks or by her children – unlike many modern societies.

Mark 9: 30-37 When Jesus speaks of his impending death his disciples are afraid to question him. Instead they seek security and comfort; arguing about who will be first in the kingdom. In reply Jesus places a child in their midst – needy, dependent yet trusting. When we are honest about our own vulnerabilities and fears and still have the faith to step out into an uncertain future we find the Kingdom of God opening to us.
