Readings

Exodus 33:12-23

The Israelites are anxious that God will abandon them after they made and worshipped the golden calf. They are aware that it is God's presence that gives them life and hope, not chasing after something which they themselves have made. God assures Moses of his presence with them but Moses needs more and asks to see God's glory. God passes before Moses but covers him with his hand so that he will not see God's face.

Matthew 22:15-22

The Pharisees try to lure Jesus into the political minefield of Roman taxation. Jesus asks them to show him the image on the coin. We recall the image made by the Israelites of the golden calf – a man-made image, yet one that people gave their hearts to. We are reminded also of whose image we bear: God's. We ourselves bear the imprint of God's glory which Moses so wanted to see. It is for us to decide whether or not we wish to belong to God, our creator, or to our own creations.
